Cara Jane Evans, manager of Custom Land Management LLC, has been designated a Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design Accredited Professional (LEED-AP) by the United States Green Building Council (USGBC). Evans is one of less than 200 LEED-APs in the state and the first in Enid, Okla.

LEED Professional Accreditation distinguishes building professionals with the knowledge and skills to successfully steward the LEED Certification process and that have demonstrated a thorough understanding of green building practices and principles.

As a LEED AP, Evans joins a select group of professionals nationwide who have recognized the significance of “green” building trends on the future of the building industry. The LEED rating system administered by the USGBC is the nationally recognized benchmark for design, construction and operation of high-performance green buildings. LEED gives building owners and operators the tools they need to have an immediate and measurable impact on their buildings’ performance through a whole-building approach to sustainability.

Evans, formerly of The Flintco Companies, Inc. of Tulsa, directs all marketing and project management activities for Custom Land Management. Cara is a graduate of Oklahoma State University where she studied real estate development, construction management and marketing. She serves on the statewide steering committee of the Construction Leadership Council, a division of the Associated General Contractors of Oklahoma, has served on both Oklahoma and DFW boards of the Society for Marketing Professional Services and has been awarded for her efforts within the architecture, engineering and construction industries.
